HARROFF TAKES OVER REINS OF CITY TOMORROW

Mayor-Elect and Auditor Karl Webster Sworn In

MANY NEW FACES SEEN AFTER JAN. 1

Only Two Members of Present Council Remain on Job

Mayor-elect George Harroff, sworn in by Mayor Norman Phillips, retiring, will take over his job as chief of the municipal administration tomorrow, Jan. 1.

Two members of the city's official family have been sworn in. Mayor Phillips announced today. In addition to the mayor-elect, City Auditor Karl Webster has also formally qualified. Webster tomorrow begins a four-year term, created by the state legislature and effective throughout Ohio.

Others To Be Sworn In

Other city officials who desire to do so may be sworn in by Mayor Phillips tonight before he relinquishes the reins of office. Otherwise, they may appear before the new mayor tomorrow or thereafter, although they must be sworn in before performing any official act.

As the administrations change, new faces appear throughout the official roster.

Charles Kennedy, service director, will terminate his services Jan. 15. He announced today he has made no definite plans yet for the future. He will be succeeded by Frank Wilson.

George Baillie, safety director under Mayor Phillips, will be succeeded by C. E. Donahay tomorrow.

Harroff has not yet announced his minor appointments, to fill vacancies on the board of sinking fund trustees, civil service commission and board of health.

Orvil Hoover becomes the new city treasurer tomorrow, succeeding W. M. Morgan, Jr. City Solicitor Lester Caplan, re-elected, remains.

Only two members of the present council remain. They are C. F. Zimmerman, first ward, and George McArthur, councilman-at-large.

Charles Cornwell succeeds James E. Britt as council president.

Paul Asty, second ward, is succeeded by Cletus Paumier; Samuel Krauss, third ward, by Paul Myers, and Joseph Calladine, fourth ward, by George Lutes.

Lutes Leaves Vacancy

Charles Rheutan and Arnold Lutes were elected councilmen-at-large, succeeding Lyman Goodballe and A. P. Morris. Lutes, in the meantime, has moved to Alliance where he has accepted a position and therefore will be unable to qualify as a Salem councilman. This vacancy will be filled at council's first meeting.

The present city council will wind up its affairs at an adjourned meeting tonight in the city hall. The session will be brief, officials say.

Maccabee Knights To Install Leaders

Quaker City tent No. 144, Knights of Maccabees, will install officers for the coming year at the meeting next Monday night at the hall. It was announced during the regular session Monday evening. One candidate was initiated.

The group made plans during the meeting for a party for knights, ladies, families and friends at the hall Jan. 10. Cards and dancing will be features. Definite arrangements will be announced later.

Political Changes Looming With Arrival of New Year

Washingtonville, Leetonia Have New Mayors; Columbiana, Lisbon Executives Continue

Throughout Columbiana county the turn of the year finds political ineptus changing in cities and villages.

A notable exception to the rule is provided by Mayor G. Cecil Rauch in Lisbon, who tomorrow will begin his third term, surrounded by an entirely Republican corps of officers.

Mrs. Helen Blackburn succeeds Mrs. Clara Nevins as village treasurer and Kenneth Hixcox becomes village clerk, succeeding Lloyd C. Binsley.

Atty. William B. Moore is expected to be reappointed as village solicitor and the same is true of Ralph O. Rogers, public affairs board clerk.

Marshal Dalton Pike continues in office by virtue of re-election, and Charles Patterson, the day patrol man, an appointive position, awaits action of council.

The public affairs board includes W. M. Morgan, J. H. Vogan and R. T. Morris. Morgan and Vogan were re-elected; Morris succeeds Nevins Albright.

Gerald Eells is the only new member of council. He took Ross Gilbert's place. The five holdovers included C. L. Robinson, R. E. Patterson, Clarence W. Ball, C. H. Baker and Harry G. Arter.

The present council held its final meeting of the year last night, winding up its affairs.

Leetonia

In Leetonia the administration shifts into the hands of John Arnold, serving his first term as mayor. W. W. Long is the retiring chief executive. L. E. Fisher, treasurer, and James Blackwood, clerk, continue in their respective offices, although the village has a new marshal in the person of Harry Gibson, succeeding C. R. Shive.

The new council includes Lawrence Bess, A. H. Grace, George Ripper, George Davis, George Holland and Luke Behringer, while the public affairs group includes William Hoffman, John Young and William Keglemyer. The retiring members of the board are Michael Sullivan, M. J. Bellhart and T. B. Cope.

C. J. Hart, mayor, begins his second term at Columbiana, with a mixture of new and old officials making up the remainder of the village roster.

Three new members and three old make up the village council. The holdover solons are Ray W. Fisher, Dick Fitzpatrick and Arthur

EVANGELISTIC RITES FEATURE CHURCH EVENTS

Dr. L. R. Akers of Orrville at Methodist Meet Tonight

SPECIAL MUSIC WILL BE GIVEN

Other Salem Congregations To Welcome New Year

Special musical numbers by N. B. Vandall and his two sons, Robert and Theodore, and a sermon delivered by Dr. E. D. Murch of East Palestine, widely known Bible student, marked the evangelistic services, at the Methodist Episcopal church last night.

Dr. Murch, preaching in the absence of Dr. L. R. Akers of Orrville, who was unable to attend last night's meeting because of illness, used as his theme "Putting Jesus to the Test". Vandall and his sons sang "That Old Family Church" and "Jesus Paid It All", while Vandall sang the solo, "God Rode on a Windstorm", a negro spiritual.

Dr. Akers to Preach

At the service tonight, which will be one of several being conducted by churches throughout Salem in observance of the New Year, Dr. Akers will preach on the subject, "The Flood Tide of Life" and Vandall will sing two of his own compositions.

Many of the churches which do not have services scheduled for tonight will participate in the evangelistic meeting of the Methodist church, which will open with a prayer meeting in the church parlor at 7 and will be followed by the evangelistic gathering in the auditorium at 7:30.

At the Baptist church from 9 until 12 tonight, the United Bible class will have an old fashioned watch service. Rev. A. C. Westphal, pastor, announced that the public is invited to this service.

Other watch services tonight will be held by the St. John and Mt. Zion A. M. E. churches. Mr. Ross of the Young Men's Personal Work league will be one of the speakers at the St. John service while Rev. Ira Lavigne will have charge of the watch meeting from 10 until 12 at the Mt. Zion church.

Besides the Methodist evangelistic services tomorrow night, the Friends and Christian Science churches will hold regular Wednesday prayer meetings and the Nazarene church members will take part in a New Year's day rally at New Philadelphia.

Emmanuel Lutheran

The Emmanuel Lutheran church will have a special New Year's day service at 10 a. m. at which Rev. John Bauman will preach on the subject, "Living the New Year with Jesus". Rev. Bauman will also preach at the German services of the church at 11 a. m. and he invites all members of the church, their friends and strangers to attend the services.

The Mt. Zion A. M. E. church will hold a New Year's day party at the church parsonage, 290 S. Ellsworth ave., tomorrow evening. Rev. Lavigne announced today. The party will be for church members and their friends.

Calling All Cars—Chiefly Freights

Here's an opportunity for a new WPA job classification—a WPA detective to find the WPA bricks which disappeared, along with the car they were in, from a Pennsylvania railroad switch last night.

John Auld, supervisor of projects in the city, yesterday placed a crew of men at work unloading bricks from the freight car. The bricks had been sent to the city for use on WPA jobs, now in progress here.

Darkness fell before the unloading could be completed.

Auld understood that the freight car would remain on the siding until this evening. He had planned this morning to complete the unloading.

However, when the men went to the tracks today neither the bricks nor the freight car could be found.

A "shifter" engine evidently had picked up the car during the night.

Cleveland Will Hear New Tunes By Salem Writer

Once again, Brooks Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bowman of Highland Ave., is in the public eye.

This time not only as a song writer with several melodies which were announced for the first time in The News early in September, but as an actor who plays the leading role in the Princeton university's Triangle club production, "What a Relief," which will be presented at the Public Music Hall in Cleveland tonight.

Bowman, who is reported to have signed with R. K. O. for a tour next year, portrays "Apollo" in the musical show which concerns the problems of the gold-ridden administration of the gods of the New Deal and Mt. Olympus.

The musical score of the show is by Bowman and Frank Tapin of Cleveland. Bowman's musical contributions to the production were those which he pounded out on the keys of a 75-year old piano while spending his summer vacation at his home here.

Concerning Bowman's new tunes, The Cleveland Plain Dealer comments: "A NEWSPAPER PICTURE OF YOU, Brooks Bowman, who wrote 'Love and a Dime' and 'East of the Sun and West of the Moon,' did this one, and it's an agreeable little serenade to the debutante who gets her photograph in the leading dailies."

GIVE ME A GIBSON GIRL. Wherein Mr. Bowman breaks down and confesses that he'd trade the snappy, modern girls for the old-fashioned kind, and sells you the idea in a cute little waltz tune.

THEN I SHAN'T LOVE YOU ANY MORE. Not exactly a novel idea in this Bowman number, but it's one that's always appealing, and the air isn't half bad.

Construct Lisbon Waterworks Soon

LISBON, Dec. 31.—Work on the new waterworks for this village will begin Jan. 15, it was announced today by Ralph O. Rogers, public affairs clerk following his receipt of the official approval from Columbiana Monday.

J. A. Woodward Co., engineers of Leetonia, will handle the work which will be supervised by PWA inspectors.

Fled to Avoid Hauptmann Execution, Crew of Ship Says

By LLOYD LEHBRAS, (Copyright, 1935, The Associated Press)

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 31.—The Charles A. Lindberghs, declared by members of the crew of their ship to have left the United States to avoid the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, landed here today after a rough trans-Atlantic trip and went into immediate seclusion in a hotel suite in the heart of Liverpool.

They dashed down the gangplank of the steamer American Importer, which carried no other passengers, and, escorted by a carload of detectives, drove directly to The Adelphi hotel.

Go Directly to Rooms

There, the famous flier, his wife and their three-year-old son, Jon, passed swiftly through the lobby without registering and went directly to their rooms.

Even the numbers of the hotel rooms were kept secret.

The American Importer, arriving off its Gladstone dock in the Mersey river at an early hour this morning, lay at anchor until 11 a. m.

Then a tug puffed up the side of the vessel and started it through the locks.

In the middle of the first lock, the ship unexpectedly was tied up while two home office officials and two uniformed bobbies boarded.

At 12:30 p. m. the family train was disembarked, after considerable delay and passing back and forth by officials.

The door facing the gangway opened, and the petite Anne Mary Lindbergh, clad in a smartly-tailored suit, glanced about with a worried look.

She saw the waiting crowd, many of them dockworkers and as a cheer went up she smiled.

Then she ran quickly down the gangway, with the bareheaded Lindbergh, carrying his son, close behind.

Jon, a sturdy figure in a blue woolen romper suit, clutched his father tightly around the neck. His face was buried deeply in Lindbergh's shoulder and he did not look at the crowd.

Several thousand workmen were just returning from lunch to the Liverpool docks as the Lindberghs disembarked. Some cheered; some stood in silence.

As the Lindberghs stepped into a taxi and drove away, preceded by the police car, one man drew himself to attention and stood in military salute.

Lindy Smiles

Another cheer went up from the crowd and Lindbergh smiled back. No one was allowed to approach the Lindberghs and the colonel himself said nothing.

But members of the Importer's crew, before the little family appeared, said he had told them he left the United States to avoid the execution of the convicted killer of his first son.

Hauptmann has been condemned to die next month in the New Jersey state prison for the kidnap murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The Lindberghs hurried to their waiting taxicab through a locked-off portion of the docks.

Five automobiles carrying American, British and French newspapermen followed the machine from the pierhead.

They had expected the route to lead to either Wales or Scotland, but instead it cut directly into the heart of Liverpool and to the hotel.

Heavy rain was falling as a small official party, consisting of members of the Importer's Shipping company, immigration authorities and Liverpool detectives set out in a sail tug for the ship prior to its docking.

The Lindberghs spent nearly two hours in conference with the officials, who then returned to shore. The docking followed.

When the family left the United States, there were reports. Lindbergh was seeking sanctuary from threats against his second son.

But crewmen of the vessel he chose for his trip to British shores said these rumors were not true; that, instead, the flier himself had asserted he did not desire to be in America during the week of Jan. 13—the time of Hauptmann's execution.

HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS

Custom has linked the words "happy" and "prosperous" in the country's new year greeting. It is a good phrase for what usually is a happy occasion. The beginning of a new calendar, though it actually changes nothing, produces a pleasant illusion of starting off on Jan. 1 with a clean slate and a strengthened set of good intentions.

A happy and prosperous new year!

The phrase is adequate, both in sentiment and in length. For general purposes, it couldn't be improved upon. Yet, if an attempt were to be made, one adjective might be added for specific use during 1936. After that, it probably wouldn't be needed to describe what is the most direct wish Americans could make for their fellowmen in 1936.

The adjective is the word "sane." A happy, prosperous and sane new year!

The country has regained most of the composure it nervously abandoned in the years 1934 and 1935. It can look at its problems more calmly and intelligently than it was able to look at them when it seemed that every part of the national machinery had been thrown out of adjustment by collapse of the boom era which happened at the end of the preceding decade.

But there still is a tendency away from a stable, mental balance. There still is reason to fear that strange theories will capture popular imagination and that men will be unable to think straight and individually when confronted with questions which must be answered. America's most precious political asset through the years has been common sense. Often, it has been overpowered by folly, but in the end it has reasserted itself. May it do so again in the coming year, not for the benefit of any particular principle or set of principles, but for the benefit of more than 120,000,000 persons whose happiness and whose prosperity as a nation depend on common sense—on sanity in decisions which affect them.

BY WAY OF COMPARISON

While Premier Laval was pleading for a stay of political execution of his cabinet in Paris on Friday, the Emperor of Ethiopia, cause of most of M. Laval's immediate trouble, was engaged in a more cheerful pursuit. He was preparing a hot mustard plaster, so to speak, for the iron-jawed gentleman in Rome who wants to take the emperor's kingdom away from him.

Taking his cue from the peace plan which Premier Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare prepared a few days ago, but which produced nothing but a yell of anguish when it was applied to the tender sentimentalities of its Ethiopian victim, Emperor Haile Selassie has concocted a peace plan of his own. Italy must withdraw from Ethiopia, pay indemnities and consent to establishment of definite frontiers between its African possessions and Ethiopia. Furthermore, the big powers must recognize Ethiopia as a sovereign state. Emperor Haile Selassie must have had a glint in his eye when he stirred in that last spoonful of mustard. He meant it should sting as much as the Laval-Hoare proposal to lop off the edges of his kingdom.

Italy, of course, won't bother to say anything about the Ethiopian plaster. It will endure its pain in silence, fortified by frequent reports of successes from the African front. But the strange part of it is that Addis Ababa is just as confident as Rome. It, too, is hearing reports of momentous victories. Emperor Haile Selassie is confident he is winning the war. Strangest of all, he may be right. The red-hot mustard plaster which he has prepared for the Napoleon of Rome might be almost soothing in comparison with the political operation which will be in order if it turns out to be Premier Mussolini instead of Emperor Haile Selassie who is being deceived by dispatches from the battlefield.

THE STARS SAY

For Wednesday, January 1

The year opens on a high note of progress, prosperity and happiness, especially for those disposed to apply themselves to difficult and ambitious projects. There is every encouraging augury for those reaching for high goals, not only of achievement but for personal prestige and popularity.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of much progress and prosperity, with advancement through diligent effort in well-directed lines of ambition. Hard work and ability are likely to attract those in power and standing who will be ready to extend friendly and substantial support.

A child born on this day may be capable, industrious and ambitious, attracting those of high influence.

For Thursday, January 2

A lively day is presaged from the predominant lunar aspects but one with much hazard and doubt, especially in the menace of misrepresentation, slander and other crooked angles. While there will be fine stimulus to new ventures, yet these are beset with difficulties and distortions, calling for utmost watchfulness, sagacity and integrity, lest there be loss, possibly through speculation, law and false report.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively year, with the energies and faculties highly keyed for new undertakings, but there is a menace of fraud, misrepresentation and false report, with danger of loss through this, litigations and speculation, unless extreme precaution be taken in this respect.

A child born on this day may have excellent abilities and talents, but may be disposed to twist things to its own betterment and eventual undoing.

Notable nativity: Henry M. Flagler, capitalist.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—James Thurber has become the town's literary surprise, with two best selling books in a row. Each was a collection of hastily written sketches and amateurish looking drawings he had turned out for a weekly magazine. Separately they seemed trivial, but lumped together, a riot.

Beneath the trou-tou of his gaities, the critics have discovered the cold blooded dissembler, a blithe destroyer of illusions. Little Bell, in a critique, believes Thurber is intent on pulverizing the human race. Still another reviewer alliterates: "A fiendish flayer of fumbles."

Noteworthy in his salty rubaiyats is his flair for recollections of boyhood, his Aunt Ida and her "Law, me, pool!" and his grandpapa out in Columbus, O. He makes them a three ring circus. As he observes: "You see I am a rememberer, an analyzer. I have a pocketful of old used years."

Thurber's caprices do not center altogether on his skits and sketches. He is a rousing spirit in the cafes, where he lends himself to the warming gesture of applying the "hot foot" as well as giving a yank en passant, to the occasional bright beard of a serious thinker.

Memories: When money was called "cush," silk skirts with a swish. Cameras with black hoods. First shaving mug for the barber shop shelf. The calling card saucer on the hall table. That taste after smoking a section of an old buggy whip. Shoulder braces. Horse shoe nail nut picks. Slicking up patent leather shoes on the dewy grass before ringing her bell. The clean apron under the stairs for answering the front door. Drying walnuts on the coal shed roof. Spending the Sunday school penny. Free perfumed cards from the drug store. Leather knee pads. Getting five skips from a stone on the mill pond.

Robert Louis Stevenson, the legend goes, wrote his choicest stuff during the eight years he was tortured by continuous headache. Conrad's most remembered descriptions were turned out from a gouty sick bed. Breckenridge Ellis has authored more than 30 novels during life in a wheel chair and with vision almost faded. Indeed the history of fine literature seems an almost solid background of pain. I thought of these things today upon receiving a despairing note from Woonsocket, R. I., moaning: "I am in the midst of a short story I know will sell. Yet I awakened today to a squalling brat in the room above and a howling dog in the yard next door. And I have a tooth that is beginning to twinge."

A summer evening a few years ago, my wife and I halted in a motor journey at the serene German village of Eisenach, where Napoleon was almost betrayed in his retreat from Moscow. To visit the home of Johann Bach, see the collection of musical instruments upon which he and his 20 children played and the organ in the church across the way where he was so long organist. Our self-appointed circone was a townsman who spoke English and had played in a Roxy orchestra in New York. Homesickness had overwhelmed him. But as our car moved off he said: "Some day I may see you again, for I am going back." In Luchow's the other evening a waiter, after serving our order, hesitated, indulged a few nervous slides of dishes on the table, and finally observed: "Well, I'm back." The musician of Eisenach!

Broadway's most logical historian for the past decade is Gene Buck. So much so publishers are angling for his memoirs. As a song writer, fashioner of revue skits and aide-de-camp to Ziegfeld, he was behind the scenes in that fabulous era. And he looked on with the calm poise of a teetotaler. Should he tell all, my, my!

They came out of one of those saucily awninged snack bars near the Pennsy station in the rosy flush of a few just-one-mores. Teetering on the curb, one urged: "Hurry up or we'll miss the next train to Roslyn." Replied No. 2 flexing his arms: "You can sit on a silly train. I'm turning handspins to Flushing and cart-wheeling on from there!"

(Issue of Dec. 31, 1915)

The hunting season on rabbits has been extended up to and including New Year's day, according to an order received by John S. Speaks, head of the state game and fish department.

Columbus—The Salem Lighting Co., with an authorized capital of $15,000, was incorporated here today by H. T. Hartman, its president and others.

Miss Alice Hoffstot, who has been spending the last few days with friends in this city, left Friday morning for her home in Cleveland.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland to guard against this dangerous infection.

The disease is probably caused by a germ called the "pneumococcus"

This germ may be spread by coughing, sneezing or expectorating.

It may be transmitted indirectly by the handling of contaminated objects. Of course, it is difficult to prevent infection.

Serum Available

Unlike other diseases pneumonia is caused by any one of four strains or types of the germ. By this is meant that the pneumococcus exists in four different forms. The severity of the infection is influenced by the particular type responsible for it. An attack is designated as pneumonia of Type I,

II, III or IV.

As I have suggested, a protective serum is now available. Such a treatment has been developed for Types I and II only, so far. It is of value only if administered during the early stages of the disease.

I believe that one of the greatest dangers of pneumonia is neglect of the disease, or the mistaken idea that the attack is a simple cold or cough. Often, self-medication and home remedies are resorted to,

when trained nursing and expert medical care are absolutely essential.

The early symptoms of the disease closely resemble those of simple cold or cough. The victim has severe chill and fever. This is followed by a vague feeling of unrest.

The sufferer knows he is not well but cannot locate the trouble.

There follows a heavy sensation in the chest. A hacking cough may soon develop.

Answers to Health Queries

G. F. Q.—What can be done for a sinus infection? Does this require an operation?

A.—The treatment depends upon the source of the trouble. It is often slow and stubborn in yielding to treatment. Your doctor will advise you. For further particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

P. M. Q.—What treatment do you advise for psoriasis and is there any cure for it?

A.—Every attention must be given the digestion. This skin disturbance requires persistent treatment. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed stamped envelopes with their questions. All inquiries should be addressed to him in care of this newspaper.

Police to Question Family In Shooting

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—Seven members of one family were seized for questioning by police in their search for the three assassins who shot State Representative Albert J. Prignano to death on the threshold of his home Sunday night.

They were Vincent Cutala, 48, his daughter, Ann, 24, three sons, and two nephews. From them the police said they hoped to obtain information about Sam Lapicola, wanted for questioning concerning the ownership of a decrepit motor car, abandoned by the killers.

Lapicola is believed to be related to the Cutala family.

Japanese To Start Cycle Celebration

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—Japanese all over the world will celebrate tonight the end of the year of the boar—a year of fierce aggressiveness, and start greeting the year of the mouse—a year of kindness and good will.

Each year in a 12-year cycle is named for a different animal. Thus, 1936, the year of the mouse, will be followed by years of the cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, bird, dog and then boar again.

A new year means to the Japanese the start of a new life.

OUR READERS

A CALL TO COLORS

Editor, The News: To every ex-service man in Columbiana county.

The holiday season is here, and every person is interested in a few presents. I wonder how many presents in the form of 1936 due cards our national commanders of the various veterans organizations will receive by Jan. 1, 1936.

Comrades, it is up to us to show our colors and show them now. During the years of 1917 and 18 we soldiered side by side in the training camps and in the trenches, no one shirked his duty, but now it seems as though we may have lost faith with each other, as only about one-third of our comrades are affiliated with veteran organizations.

Congress convenes on Jan. 3 and they are only going to be in session a few weeks, as one-half of the congressmen and one-third of the senators have to hurry back home to try and be re-elected. The veterans have a large program to put before these bodies, such as universal draft, rehabilitation, protection for widows and orphans of our deceased buddies, national defense, and last but not least cash payment of our adjusted service certificates. These programs cannot get much consideration unless we have a large membership in our various organizations.

Every act of legislation that has been passed for the benefit of the veteran, such as pensions, hospitalization, adjusted service certificates, widows and orphans' pensions, and increases in payments to our Gold Star mothers and fathers have come through the organized effort of the several service organizations. No individual service man was ever able to get one law passed.

We are now confronted with a grave situation, one that spells destruction to the form of government and the flag we love and served during the years of 1917 and 18.

I have reference to Communistic "RED" movement being carried on in our great United States by Soviet Russia. Do you know that this movement at this writing has 36 youth and 30 adult organizations functioning within our country, trying to disrupt the morale and decency of our American people and our school children. Are we as a group of ex-service men going to stand back and allow these Reds to take our country for Russia or are we going to unite as one and counteract it through our Americanism program, essay contests, school awards, Boy Scouts, Junior baseball, and Sons of the Legion.

Now is the time to act. Pay your dues in some veterans organization. If these various programs fail, don't say our national commanders sold us out. Hang your head in shame and say to the Gold Star Mothers, your disabled comrades and the widows and orphans of our deceased buddies, I am the one who sold out. I neglected to pay my dues.

C. L. WETZEL, County commander, American Legion.

May Use Dynamite To Break Ice Jam

MARIETTA, Dec. 31.—Army engineers considered today the use of dynamite to smash the worst Ohio river ice gorge since 1918.

The jam, which extended from Newport, O., almost to Sistersville, W. Va., 18 miles up the river, resisted all efforts to break it by ramming the lower edge with steel-hulled boats.

Hiram A. Carpenter, St. Mary's W. Va., boat owner whose fleet of 18 small craft was moored in the open river just below the gorge, said the ice extended in many places to a depth of 30 feet.

"It's the worst since the gorge, the occurred in the Moundsville narrows in February of 1918," he said.

The temperature dropped to nine degrees below zero this morning, government observers said it was the lowest since the minus 17 degree reading in February, 1918.

35 Miles On Bike

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 31.—Eddie Testa, professional bike rider, admitted he sped 35 miles an hour on his bicycle through a signal.

"Well, it was your life you were risking," said the court. "I fine you $2 and suspend it."

Big-Eared Swans

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 31.—Three swans on Ira Drymon's farm "must have had ears as big as their wings," Drymon said. He planned to capture the swans which had adopted a lake on the farm as their home. Next day, the big birds flew away.

Postpone Strike

FINDLAY, Dec. 31.—Hancock county works progress administration employees postponed last night a strike scheduled for Jan. 2. Ernest C. Evers, president of the workers' alliance, said the action was taken pending further conferences with WPA officials.

WIFE IN CUSTODY by BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPTER XXVI

There was no further doubt about it. Helen was to be a mother. Dr. Johnson was a fatherly, good-natured fellow with a bluff, hearty manner.

"Go home and enjoy yourself," he advised her. "Exercise in moderation; live naturally, eat what you like. There's nothing to it. In a day or two you'll be nauseous in the morning. You'll be over it by noon! Laugh a lot. Laughter makes a good baby, and go places, do things. There's nothing to it, I tell you. And you'll come to see me every other week and tell me how fine you feel!"

He sent the two girls home in high spirits.

"Isn't he marvelous," Helen exclaimed. "I know I'm going to love every minute of it. Belle! A baby of our own! I'm so thrilled I could cry and shout for joy!"

"When are you going to tell Walter?" Helen's eyes grew dreamy. "I'll tell him soon. Maybe Sunday. I wish Agnes weren't here. She brings that harassed, rutted look to his forehead when she begins to nag about the shops. Oh, I want to get Walter in one of our golden moods. Sunday, when he doesn't have to rush off, I'll tell him, oh so beautifully . . . he'll be so pleased."

"I'll bet he will. Honestly, I'm so thrilled I can hardly keep from bubbling it out," said Belle.

"Oh, no; you mustn't. I don't want him to have a hint of it before I tell him."

"I wouldn't spoil your effect for the world, darling. You shall have all the joy in telling him yourself."

When they got back to the house Agnes said curiously, "A Dr. Johnson called up to say that you forgot the prescription he wanted you to have, so I sent Anton over for it in the small car. What prescription, Helen? Are you sick?"

Belle muttered something like "damn" under her breath.

"I have been having headaches lately, so I thought I'd better see Dr. Johnson."

Agnes grunted. "Humph, you run around too much."

"Yes, I guess that's it," Helen agreed, relieved. "I'm going to rest more. Thanks for sending Anton. Agnes. It was very thoughtful of you."

That night as they sat at dinner Helen was in a panic lest Agnes mention her visit to the doctor. She chattered with forced gaiety all through dinner so that Agnes wouldn't have a chance to bring it up until she got Walter off by herself and told him. She wanted to tell it to him alone. She could imagine his ecstasy, his tender kisses when he heard.

Suddenly the table began to go round and round. Helen felt the food press against her chest. She swallowed vainly, tried to control herself but the nausea rose within her like a wave. She couldn't hold it back any longer. She dashed out of the dining room.

"Helen, what's the trouble, darling?" Walter rose to follow her. "Let her alone, Walter," Agnes commanded. "She's going to have a baby, I bet."

Walter rushed out after Helen. He found her in the bathroom leaning weakly against the tub.

"Oh, darling, is it true?" "Just an upset stomach," she gasped, trying to smile. "I feel better."

"Agnes said you were going to have a baby, dearest. Oh, my dear, are you?"

"Agnes told you! Oh, Walter! I wanted to tell you beautifully. I wanted to tell it to you so beautifully," Helen burst into tears.

He gathered her into his arms and soothed her.

"What difference how you told me? I'm so happy. I'm so pleased and thrilled. Oh, Helen, our own little baby. Stop crying, darling, you'll make yourself sick."

"I wanted to tell you," she sobbed brokenly. "Not in the bathroom. I wanted to tell you so beautifully."

He led her weeping up to their room. Belle got up abruptly from the table and walked into the living room. Agnes finished her dinner.

Over Labor day Irene and Dirk motored out to the farm. Agnes was still there. Belle had left a few days before Labor day. Agnes' whole attitude had changed. She was less guarded in her criticisms.

and yet even these were veiled in such honeyed accents that no one except Helen could appreciate the full sting of their darts. Helen raged with impotence to retaliate, but without Belle to bolster her up she was at a loss to know what to do.

She complained to Walter finally in sheer desperation.

"Oh, my darling," he said unhappily, "what can I do? She doesn't mean anything. She's got a heart of gold. I admit she's tactless, but you've simply got to overlook it."

"Why must I overlook it? Helen asked.

"Please, Helen, don't upset yourself. It's not good for you in your condition. Just try to think of her life; she's had this accident that's made an invalid of her and then she's always stewing because she's older than Carl and now she's probably jealous—you can't blame her—at your having a baby. She can't have one, you know, ever. I told you about it."

"I know all that, Walter. If I didn't, I couldn't have stood it this long. But do I have to suffer because she's frustrated and miserable? Why can't she be a little sympathetic to me? She knows my condition. Why must I do all the compromising, all the understanding?"

"You're younger for one thing. And you're my wife. In a way you ought to share my debts too. Is it too much to ask you to be tolerant and kind for my sake?"

"It's not fair, Walter. You're not being fair to put it that way. I'll do anything for you because I love you, but this isn't fair. You're taking advantage of my love; she's protesting. 'Oh, if I were only clever. If I could only make you see that your crazy sense of what you owe them is making us both slaves to them.'"

"Helen, you're hysterical. I can't reason with you when you're in such a state of nerves. You just imagine it. I have eyes and ears too. So far as I can see, Agnes has been unusually nice to you and to Belle too. Belle was here all summer. I was only too glad to have her; too glad to make her welcome and I expect you to do the same for my sisters."

"You compare Belle with Agnes! Belle who is so tactful that she's incapable of saying an unkind thing!"

"Well, what do you want me to do? Throw my sister out?" Walter's lips were tight line. His forehead was a maze of frowns.

"You won't see," Helen despaired, her voice breaking.

"You won't even console me, agree with me, make it easier for me!"

"You're being stubborn and spoiled, Helen. It's unlike you and I don't like it at all."

He turned and left her sitting there, her eyes wide with horror.

"Walter, Walter! Don't leave me like this, Walter! Walter!"

Irene said, "Why Helen, how pale you look? Aren't you well?"

Walter put his arm about his wife's shoulder. "Don't tell her that, Irene. Helen has a very special kind of paleness now. She's to be congratulated, not commiserated with. We're both to be congratulated, aren't we, darling?"

Helen smiled. "It's not a secret any more, Irene, so I might as well tell you I'm going to have a baby."

"Really. Well, well! Walter, dear me, a daddy! Well, congratulations, of course."

"How are you, Helen? You lucky devils, both of you. This is news for rejoicing. You look splendid Helen."

"Thanks, Dirk. I appreciate your tact. I'm still in the worst stage, but it is nice of you to pretend that I look well."

"But I'm not pretending! On my honor! There is a new loveliness in your face. You look spiritual and angelic."

"Rot," said Irene as they walked into the house. Dirk is old-fashioned, Helen. He still regards motherhood, even approaching motherhood, as something quite exalted and saintly, don't you, darling?"

Dirk smiled. "Don't you believe it, Helen. It's going to be fashionable after a while to be a mother and then won't Irene be wild that you got in the swim early?"

"Oh, hello, Agnes, you still here? How's the knee?"

"Not so well, thanks."

After luncheon they all rambled over to the pool for a swim. Dirk left the others laughing and disporting themselves in the pool to come to Helen's side. She was stretched out in a canvass sun chair, her sand-colored hair in two braids down her shoulders; the apple-green bathing suit she wore was reflected in little green flecks in her wide gray eyes.

"Well, little Gretchen, our little scheme didn't work out as well as we expected, did it?"

"I'm afraid it didn't, Dirk." She laughed ruefully.

"I'm sorry."

"I think it will be better, though, later, Dirk. I'm staying on here over the winter. The baby is expected in March. I think the winter will be a long and peaceful one. I hope it's bitterly cold!"

He looked into her eyes. She couldn't fathom his expression because the sun blinded her. "May it be a long winter and a frosty one!"

"Selah!" she murmured.

He dropped his voice a key. "How long has Agnes been here?"

"Three weeks, Dirk. It's been like three years."

"What does Walter say?" he asked swiftly.

"I don't know what to say, Dirk. You understand, I know. But I can't make Walter see it. We almost quarreled last night. I've been miserable about it. What can I do, Dirk?"

"What do you want to do, Nellie?"

"How can I learn to feel adequate? I think that would help. If only they didn't reduce me to a nonentity. If I only were clever like my sister Belle. Of course, when I keep away from them that helps. I try hard to keep away, but Walter sees them every day."

"That's not solving the problem. That's running away from it."

"I know it, Dirk, but I'm no match for them. It may solve itself after the baby's born, but they just reduce me to an atom. I'm all confused and I can't even hold my position before them."

"Listen, Helen," he told her swiftly "just remember this; that

"You're being stubborn and spoiled, Helen. It's unlike you and I don't like it at all."

He turned and left her sitting there, her eyes wide with horror.

"Walter, Walter! Don't leave me like this, Walter! Walter!"

Irene said, "Why Helen, how pale you look? Aren't you well?"

Walter put his arm about his wife's shoulder. "Don't tell her that, Irene. Helen has a very special kind of paleness now. She's to be congratulated, not commiserated with. We're both to be congratulated, aren't we, darling?"

Helen smiled. "It's not a secret any more, Irene, so I might as well tell you I'm going to have a baby."

"Really. Well, well! Walter, dear me, a daddy! Well, congratulations, of course."

"How are you, Helen? You lucky devils, both of you. This is news for rejoicing. You look splendid Helen."

"Thanks, Dirk. I appreciate your tact. I'm still in the worst stage, but it is nice of you to pretend that I look well."

"But I'm not pretending! On my honor! There is a new loveliness in your face. You look spiritual and angelic."

knowing you are in the right will give you poise. Always remember when you're in a discussion with one of 'em that when you're right nothing can shake your position. That will give you poise and will baffle 'em. Also never lose your temper and above all never cry. You're such a sensitive child, Nellie. It's a pity that you have to fight. My advice, however, is to face reality and not run away from it. When a situation arises and you know you're right, face it! Speak up! Don't weaken! When you're sure you're right, be firm!"

From the pool Irene threw a ball at him. "Come on, Dirk, play! What are you doing? Making speech?"

"I'll talk to you later, Nellie," flashed at her as he leaped into the pool.

Despite Soggy Field And Threats of Rain Mustangs are Favored

Odds Remain 10 to 8 In Favor of S. M. U.; 84,000 Fans To Witness Contest; Dopesters Reluctant to Tab Stanford As Good Mudder

(By Associated Press)

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 31.—The weather may get the garlands and wear the thorns after the Rose Bowl game here tomorrow between Stanford and Southern Methodist.

A soggy turf, the result of two rains in three days, greeted the western representatives and the wild charging Mustangs from Texas today as they turned to the scene of the classic for final workouts before the intersectional clash.

In spite of the possibility of additional moisture and uncertain footing, odds remained 10 to 8, in favor of Coach Matty Bell's Texans.

Thousands of fans, only 84,000 of whom will see the contest, were expected to witness the game, which is being played on a soggy field. Dopesters are reluctant to tab Coach Claude (Tiny) Thornhill's team as a good mudder but although the weight advantage will be theirs by a wide margin.

Less Handicapped

Stanford's powerful ground attack built around Bobby Grayson, All-American fullback, certainly would be less handicapped in the mud than would the lightning thrusts of the visitors featuring Bobby Wilson, the elusive little All-American.

Yet Stanford failed in the rain-drenched Bowl here two years ago against a lighter Columbia, eleven Southern Methodist won two ball games in the rain this season with Wilson piling up many yards and the passing attack clicking in fine fashion.

Most observers were inclined to rate the game as a toss-up, although Southern Methodist's offensive ability has caught the eyes of the Rose Bowl observers.

There appeared to be some psychological advantage in behalf of the western representative.

Based on Record

This was based on the unfortunate Rose Bowl record of Stanford in which the Indians have won only one game in five starts. Eight members of the team that will start against the Mustangs tomorrow were members of the eleven that lost to Columbia and Alabama and they are determined to atone for those losses in the last grid clash of their intercollegiate careers.

S. M. U. will carry the reputation of the southwest into the game. It is the first time a team from that section ever played in the annual classic and the Mustangs are anxious to make a good impression. In physical condition the teams will be even. Stanford has James (Monty) Moscrip hobbling around with a game knee. Southern Methodist's Harry Shuford also is limping.

Saved Stanford

Moscrip's field goal kicking saved Stanford from defeat or at least on several occasions this year. Shuford at fullback is a great line plunger and blocker.

Each squad polished off with hard dummy scrimmage sessions yesterday. The Mustangs were out early yesterday morning for a secret session at Occidental college while Stanford started its usual open practice at Brookside park in the afternoon.

Today's drills will be confined to light limbering up exercises and some pass throwing, punting and running on the Rose Bowl turf.

Recognize Iowan As Leading Boxer

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—Everett Rightmire, Sioux City, Iowa, ranked today as the Illinois State Athletic commission's No. 1 challenger for the World's featherweight championship. He won the honor last night by decisively defeating the ever charging Winfred (Moon) Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., in a 12-round bout.

Rightmire was presented with a belt, symbolic of the honor, by Barney Ross, World's welterweight champion.

Rightmire will fight the winner of a bout between Claud Varner of Los Angeles and Mike Belloise of New York, billed in New York for Jan. 8.

There was Southern Methodist's 20 to 14 win from Texas Christian, leaving the witnesses gibbering.

Also Gene Sarazen's double-eagle 2 by holing a 230 yard spoon shot to win the Master's golf tournament at Augusta; the victories of Omaha in the Derby, Preakness and Belmont equalling in the performance of his sire, Gallant Fox; Jesse Owens' world's records for the 100, 220, low hurdles and broad jump; Keith Brown's 14 feet 5 1-8 inches in the pole vault; Lawson Little's record victories in the American and British amateur golf events, rounding out 31 straight matches; the Detroit Tigers' win in the world series from the Chicago Cubs; Sir Malcolm Campbell, who achieved his goal at last, the 300-mile-an-

RECORDS REVEAL 1935 UNUSUAL IN SPORTS PARADE

Past Year Will Be Known As That of Great Awakening

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Quite sincerely and without benefit of any allegory having to do with the Old Man with the bathrobe, goatee, scythe, lantern and rheum-dimmed eye the calendar year of 1935 can and must be written off as something quite apart and unusual in the march of sports down through the generations. By those of us who were fortunate witnesses, it will be remembered for the tremendous moments it provided, one upon the other, until the eye became jaded and the senses all but numb to further shock.

Awakening Year
By those yet to come it will be known as the year of the Great Awakening.

For the first time since 1927, the million-dollar gate was seen in boxing again the night in September when Joe Louis knocked out Max Baer before 90,000 at the Yankee Stadium. Football provided three great unbeaten teams in Minnesota, Southern Methodist and Princeton and sell-out crowds, ranging from 80,000 to 90,000, at the California-Stanford, Army-Navy, Notre Dame-Army, Notre Dame-Ohio State and N. Y. U.-Fordham games, among others.

Wimbledon returned to the gold standard when Helen Wills Moody, out of competition for three years, suddenly declared herself very much in again by winning the final round from the lady she has never learned to love, Helen Hull Jacobs. The Derby and Preakness played to among the greatest crowds in their history, winter racing in Florida broke all records for betting. The World Series topped a million in receipts for the second straight year.

Gold Rush On
All told, the Gold Rush was on again, in some ways more rampant than ever. And perhaps somewhere in the ratio between cause and effect, performances more than kept pace.

There was, for example, the coming of Joe Louis, negro heavyweight who knocked out all who would face him, except Natie Brown, second-rate, who clung for ten rounds. There were many at the close of the year who believed Louis to be the greatest fighter of all time.

There was also James J. Braddock, so declass as to be on the relief rolls, then as a 1-10 shot he beat Baer for the world's heavyweight championship. Mrs. Moody's theatrical dash from retirement to the Wimbledon championship has already been related, another will-to-win saga which, with Braddock's, makes one realize all the more that for real romance there is nothing quite like the field of competitive sport.

Must Endure
The rally of Notre Dame to score twice in the final period and beat Ohio State, 18 to 13, is something that must endure, so was the scene on the floor of the recent A. A. U. convention when staid men stood red faced and all but inarticulate as they screamed at each other over the question of whether America would send a team to Berlin for the Olympic games next Summer. By a close vote, the decision ran against the "antis," who objected so violently to alleged religious bias in Germany.

There was Southern Methodist's 20 to 14 win from Texas Christian, leaving the witnesses gibbering.

Also Gene Sarazen's double-eagle 2 by holing a 230 yard spoon shot to win the Master's golf tournament at Augusta; the victories of Omaha in the Derby, Preakness and Belmont equalling in the performance of his sire, Gallant Fox; Jesse Owens' world's records for the 100, 220, low hurdles and broad jump; Keith Brown's 14 feet 5 1-8 inches in the pole vault; Lawson Little's record victories in the American and British amateur golf events, rounding out 31 straight matches; the Detroit Tigers' win in the world series from the Chicago Cubs; Sir Malcolm Campbell, who achieved his goal at last, the 300-mile-an-hour pace of the giant automobile, Bluebird, on the Bonneville salt flats of Utah.

That's only a part of it—but it gives one the general idea.

SALEM HI HOST TO YOUNGSTOWN CHANEY FRIDAY

Quaker Cagers Take To Hardwoods After Two-Week Lay-Off

Close on the heels of the young coming star, 1936, who will swing into action Wednesday, succeeding the ancient and battered veteran, 1935, the Salem High school Quaker cagers, thoroughly rested after a two-week lay-off, take up their court campaign for the new year in an engagement with Youngstown Chaney's hardwood quintet at the High school gymnasium Friday night.

Register Three Victories
Blessed by the aged 1935 who permitted them to register victories in their only three contests of the early campaign, the Quaker quintet seeks the favor of the young 1936 who holds the outcome of their coming 13 engagements in his tiny hands.

Returning from his Christmas vacation yesterday, Coach Herbert Brown sent the Quaker cagers through a stiff drill at the High school gym and will no doubt continue with hard practices the remainder of the week.

The Quakers had easy sailing in their first three contests and have yet to perform under pressure. None of their opponents so far have pushed the Red and Black cagers to the victory nor have any of them been first class hardwood teams.

Small and Inexperienced
Boardman, in the season's opener, was a small and inexperienced outfit, Lisbon, the Quaker's second victim, was of even less calibre than Boardman, and Wellsville, supposedly the Quaker's acid test, failed and did not come up to expectations when the Red and Black cagers clicked above average.

In brief, the Quaker quintet is an uncertain quantity.

Enthusiastic over the possibility of another Northeastern Ohio Big Six league championship quintet, the city's cage fans, after eagerly awaiting the coming of Jan. 3, look to Youngstown Chaney as an opponent capable of bringing out the true merits of the Quaker quintet.

Have Scored 85 Points
To date, the Red and Black five has piled up a total of 85 points in bowling over three opponents. The two hardwood aces of the present team, Kenneth Shears and Eddie Pukalski, have accounted for 60 of these points, while the remaining 15 markers are divided between regulars Schaffer, Single and Lutch and sixth man, Raynes.

Should the scoring ability of aces Shears and Pukalski be curbed in Friday night's contest with Youngstown Chaney, and the Steel City lads will no doubt concentrate on doing this, the burden of the Red and Black's offensive will fall on Schaffer, Single and Lutch, a trio that would be baffled by its sudden importance and that could by no means support its cause.

Both the Quaker varsity and reserve teams will play Friday night. The reserve game starting at 7:30 and the varsity at 8:30.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 31.—The only column immediately available today on Sen. William E. Borah's grant of authority to his Ohio friends to enter his name in the Ohio primaries May 12 for the Republican presidential nomination, was a statement that he undoubtedly would receive the vote of some Ohio delegates to the Republican national convention.
James M. Linton, of the Republican state central committee, said: "If Ohio sends an unrepresented delegation to the convention, some of the delegates will vote for Borah. If the delegation is instructed, some of the members will swing to Borah as they are released."

The state central committee's decision is for an unrepresented "favorite son" delegation. G. O. P. leaders have declared that any move by Borah to secure Ohio's 52 votes at the Cleveland convention next June will be against their plans.
Ed D. Schorr, chairman of the committee, was unavailable for comment. Katherine Kennedy, Brown, Republican national committeewoman from Ohio, said she preferred not to discuss the situation.
"Mr. Borah," Linton said, "undoubtedly has thousands of friends in Ohio. However, thousands of others believe that Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, because of his age and qualifications, or Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, would be better candidates."
Both Landon and Knox have made addresses in Ohio. Observers have speculated on the possibility of all three men making a battle for Ohio's delegation.

Ginger Rogers, with George Brent, comes to the State theater for the midnight New Year's eve show and Wednesday and Thursday in "In Person," her latest starring vehicle. After her grand performance, co-starred with Fred Astaire in "The Gay Divorcee," "Roberta" and "Top Hat," she receives top billing in this latest musical comedy, directed by William Seiter.

New Lover For Ginger
"In Person" gives Ginger a new film lover, George Brent, who shares in this comedy, drama and romance. Together, they enact the chief participants in a speedy and robust story by Samuel Hopkins Adams, author of the prize-winning "It Happened One Night."

Ginger portrays a celebrated screen star untried from a fear of crowds. George takes her under his wing—against his better judgment—to give her an opportunity to recuperate. His diamond-hard attitude riles her, but she is determined to force him to recognize her glamour.

Finding logical place in the picture are three popular songs which give Miss Rogers adequate opportunities to display her singing-dancing skill with the deftness she showed in her flimsy musical successes with Fred Astaire. She sings "Out of Sight, Out of Mind," "Don't Mention Love to Me" and "Got a New Lease on Life," and offers two new dance routines created by Hermes Pan, associate dance director of "Top Hat."

"Charlie Chan's Secret," mystery thriller, with Warner Oland in the title role and Rosina Lawrence and Charles Quigley concludes tonight. A double bill is scheduled for the Grand theater screen on New Year's day, "Racing Luck" with Bill Zoyd in the stellar role assisted by Barbara Worth; and "Frisco Waterfront," starring Ben Lyon, Helen Twelvetrees and Rod LaRoque.
